ACROSS THE UNITED STATES: UNIVERSITIES WITH SMOKE-FREE CAMPUSES

The American Nonsmokers' Rights Foundation is a national repository of local tobacco-related ordinances and regulations in the United States. Each quarter, the ANR Foundation releases lists of places with 100% smoke-free air. While most college and university campuses have smoke-free policies prohibiting smoking indoors, with residential housing being the exception, ANR compiled a list including only those colleges and universities with entirely smoke-free campuses, or campuses with minor exceptions for smoking in limited, outdoor areas. According to their April 4, 2016 report, at least 1,483 colleges and universities in the U.S. are entirely smoke-free campuses.

Delta State University, the University of Arkansas, the University of Mississippi and the University of Florida have some of the most protective smoking policies in the Southeast. These universities are tobacco-free campuses. Smoking is prohibited throughout campus, including outside sidewalks and university vehicles.

Greek Life Houses are responsible for designating their own outdoor smoking area at least 15 ft. from entries. Advertisement, distribution and sale of all tobacco products and companies is banned from all University campuses and publications. This policy will be temporary as the University attempts to move towards a tobacco-free campus in the coming years. Anyone in violation of the smoking policy is subject to a fine of up to $50 through the University Police Department and other designated authorities. Repeat offenders may be subject to receive further appropriate disciplinary actions, to be detailed by administration.
